Biographical Sketch:

Currently, I am developing an interprofessional learning experience in the internal medicine residency training clinic. The longitudinal 6 month experience brings together nursing, medical, social work, and pharmacy students to provide care management for a registry of diabetic patients who are uncontrolled. They create a care plan with the patient for the resident primary care doctor to review. The learning and care experience is based on the Exemplary Care and Learning Site Model of care. I am also interested in developing ambulatory primary care sites into patient centered medical homes that provide an exemplary model of care delivery for learners to experience and from which to learn. I have two children who are starting at LSU medical school this summer.
