Biographical Sketch:

Dr. Sylvia M. Davis received her Ph.D. from Wichita State University in 1976 and is a professor at the LSU Health Sciences Center. Professional duties include teaching, research and clinical training of students. Areas of clinical activity include speech-language training across populations that span pre-language activities, school-aged populations and adults. Research interests include stuttering and language changes with aging. Teaching activities have included traditional classroom instruction, problem based learning, and most recently case based teaching. Dr. Davis has presented at local, state, national and international meetings.