Biographical Sketch:

I am currently an Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine, teaching with the Internal Medicine Residency Program in Baton Rouge. My teaching activities involve staffing residents and 3rd/4th year medical students in both outpatient primary care clinics and inpatient ward services. I am involved in the 3rd year student core lecture series and also give multiple large group lectures to the residents as well. As the clinical lead at Earl K. Long for Heart Failure Disease Management, I also enjoy providing education and feedback to the residents on Quality Measures and disease management outcomes and how these principles are now being incorporated into the practice of medicine.
