I Run 4, Inc.

October 2018-Present

Position: Athlete, Buddy Relations Coordinator

Supervisor: Jodi Stoner, President; Tim Boyle, Founder

- I Run 4 is a nonprofit organization that uses running as a means to build relationships between athletes and individuals with disabilities. I Run 4 also serves as a platform for advocacy and education, as athletes, such as myself, become advocates for our buddies and the community of people who share the same diagnosis.
 - I am an advocate for a young woman, Sally, with a rare genetic disorder, Kabuki syndrome. I raise awareness for and education about Kabuki syndrome as well as support the community at large.
- Work as a collaborative team member to problem-solve concerns between athletes and their buddy/family of their buddy. This regularly involves facilitating open, honest communication to mend fractured relationships. I have also supported runners when their buddy has passed away due to medical complications and have facilitated open discussions about ending relationships that are not working for a myriad of reasons.

She Can Tri

October 2019-October 2021

Position: Athlete, Advocate

Supervisor: Jackie Faye, M.A., Founder

- She Can Tri is a nonprofit organization that uses sports as a vehicle to implement social change. The project that I support through this organization is Team Afghanistan, which works to increase safety for and empowerment of women in Afghanistan.
- Work as a collaborative team member to support our common goal of instituting social change for the women of Afghanistan.
- Support the efforts of She Can Tri team members who travel to and reside in Afghanistan to facilitate safe spaces for discussion on topics of diversity as well as advocate for women's rights.
- Build relationships with women around the world, and, together, share in support, solidarity, and model healthy relationships and lifestyles.
